

Catherine of Siena College

Catherine of Siena College, based at the University of Roehampton in London, offers online courses in theology, gender and social justice. We aim to provide those working for change in their churches, communities and societies with educational insights and personal skills that will enable them to develop an informed collaborative approach to addressing complex social, theological and ethical issues.

With its roots in the Roman Catholic tradition, Catherine of Siena College is fully ecumenical and works in close partnership with Susanna Wesley Foundation (Methodist) and USPG (Anglican). We also seek to foster inter-religious dialogue.

We offer 6 week courses and 10 week courses – which are taught exclusively online. Those who successfully complete our courses receive a certificate in Continuing Professional Development from the University of Roehampton.

Course costs: £170 (6 week course); £300 (10 week course). Bursaries are available for non wage-earners and those on low incomes.
